

Global Heat Wave

Thousands of firefighters continued to battle a string of wildfires across Portugal, Spain, Greece, and southern France yesterday; at least 25,000 acres have been consumed, with more than 7,000 people forced to evacuate. The fires come as a second heatwave this summer has settled across the region. Triple-digit temperatures are expected across both Spain and Portugal today, with some areas passing 110 degrees Fahrenheit and in Italy, officials declared a state of emergency. Hot temperature threat continues across the central US. Millions will be under heat alerts across the Plains and Central California today and Tuesday as temperatures surge 10 to 15 degrees above normal. Heat indexes -- what it feels like to the human body with the combination of humidity and heat -- could reach well above 100 degrees in portions of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, San Joaquin Valley, Southern Plains, California, Upper Midwest including South Dakota, where excessive heat warnings are issued. Nearly 20% of the US population, or about 60 million people, will likely see a temperature at or above 100 degrees this week. (cnn.com 7/18)

Britain issues first-ever 'red warning' of extreme heat; facing its hottest day ever; some hospitals cancel surgeries, many schools to shut; blazes in France, Greece, Portugal, Spain force thousands to flee. (timesofisrael.com 7/18)

Empty Warnings or Real Threats?

Defying Threats From China, Speaker Pelosi Visits Targeted

Taiwan. US House Speaker Nancy Pelosi arrived in Taiwan on Tuesday despite threats from Beijing of serious consequences. She was the highest-ranking American official in 25 years to visit the self-ruled island but claimed by China which has intentions to annex it by force if necessary. Pelosi's visit has triggered increased tension between China and the United States; China views visits by foreign government officials as recognition of the island's sovereignty. (afn.net 8/2)

A Taste of What Will Happen to our Economy if We Go to War

With China. It would absolutely devastate the pharmaceutical industry. Chinese firms are said to supply more than 90% of US antibiotics, 70% of acetaminophen (Tylenol), and almost half of the anti-coagulant heparin plus much more. The food industry would also be turned upside down since China is a source for some of our spices, herbs, canned goods, and even farm equipment. The Chinese also produce a lot of our clothes including as much as 70% of our shoes. Same with 72% percent of smartphones. The artificial sweeteners in Diet Coke, toys, furniture, sports equipment ... what you buy every time you go to Target. The moment we go to war with them, the flow of cheap goods from China completely stops. In addition, once the Chinese invade Taiwan who produces nearly 66% of the world's supply of chips, there will be an excruciating computer chip shortage. If the flow of chips from Taiwan is eliminated, the entire global economy would come to a crashing halt. (prophecynewswatch.com 8/3)

20 Years After Voters Rejected 'Toilet-To-Tap' Water,

LA brags that they will be the first in the state to pipe recycled, "purified" toilet water to faucets for the sake of the environment. Lawmakers, who refuse to build new dams or expand water resources, are set to spend at least $12 billion on what they describe as "locally sourced" water. Environmentalists insist that nothing can go wrong even though a 2019 NIH hosted survey noted that "there have been relatively few health-based studies evaluating the microbial risks associated with potable reuse", which include "pathogenic bacteria, viruses, and protozoa transmitted via a fecal-oral route including Hepatitis A. Their "toilet-to-tap" plan will cost three times as much as a new reservoir.

Loving Solar Energy. While subsidizing China's exported solar industry, Californians with over 700 solar power plants and hundreds of thousands of residential solar panels enjoy an expensive and unreliable energy supply that leads to regular brown-outs. As of 2020, a solar mandate was imposed requiring all new homes to have solar panels, adding over $10,000 to the cost of a new home. With a lifespan of 25 years, the early generations of solar panels have begun to clutter up the state's landfills emitting toxic waste into ground water. (frontpagemag.com 7/31)

Israel Moves Closer to Cashless Society

Following Latest Legislation. A new Israeli law will go into effect on Monday prohibiting cash payments of over $1,760 (6,000 NIS) in cash or bank checks for transactions between a person and a business. The ceiling for transfers between private individuals will be $4,400 (NIS 15,000) instead of the current amount which is almost $14,700. (israelnews365.com 8/1)

A Storm of Indicators Show the US Consumer is Tapped Out

Great Reset: Ireland's Banks Using 'Sneaky Tactics' to Drive Public Towards Cashless Society.

While claims center around the actions of Irish banks, similar concerns have been raised in regards to the push towards a cashless society internationally, with the infamous World Economic Forum, in particular, pushing the transition. Banks are accused of intentionally understaffing branches, failing to repair cash ATMs within a reasonable timeframe, and not answering their own phones, all in an attempt to push people online. It is claimed that COVID-19 was used as an excuse by Irish financial institutions to reduce services and hours, despite many having failed to return to normality now the country has largely escaped lockdown. "The banks have used Covid to force people on to digital platforms, whether they want to or not," "The lack of staffing is chronic in banks for a reason. It creates long queues. It is the same with the phone lines." However, the shift towards a cashless society is not only something that has become a concern in Ireland, with the drive towards digital-only — something openly pushed for by the infamous World Economic Forum — recently gaining serious attention internationally.

When Currencies Die, So Do Nations.

Pakistan's rupee may be in its death throes. What was once a strong currency has been falling against the U.S. dollar for years and is performing poorly among a large group of peer nations, a drop intensified by the recent rise of the U.S. dollar and internal political strife (Jerusalem Post, July 25, 2022). Bible prophecy indicates that, at the end of the age, scarcity will explode, currencies and nations will decline, and even gold and silver won't work as a tool to buy sufficient food and goods (Ezekiel 7:14-19). Human beings will no longer be able to rely on riches and possessions as they learn the sobering lesson that it is Christ who strengthens us, not ourselves, our governments, or our possessions (Philippians 4:13). Watching other nations and situations can help us see how God may fulfill these ancient Bible prophecies. (twnews&prophecy.com 7/29)

If he hadn't been, however, and open jihad sympathizers were dealing with Prince Charles, would he have hesitated? Given the abject dhimmitude and denial of the British government regarding the jihad threat, the answer to that question is unclear. (jihadwatch.com 7/31)
